

THE CROSS

A prophecy for the end-time is given to us in Jeremiah 16:19. Jeremiah addresses יְהוָה (Yahuah) and says, "The Gentiles shall come to You from the ends of the earth and say, 'Surely your fathers have inherited lies, worthlessness and unprofitable things.'" The Revised Standard Version reads, "To Thee shall the nations come from the ends of the earth and say: 'Our fathers have inherited naught but lies, worthless things in which there is no profit.'" But these very lies could keep us from entering the New Jerusalem, as we read in Revelation 21:27, and again in Revelation 22:15 which reads, "But outside are ... whoever loves and practices a lie."

The common claim that Sabbath-keeping has been annulled in the New Testament, has been shown to be untrue. this claim is refuted on Scriptural grounds. Likewise, the claim of many sincere believers, who have erroneously been taught that the Moral (10) Ten Commandment Law has been "nailed to the tree", is also not substantiated by Scripture. These claims have since been made by many in an attempt to justify the adoption of, or the fusion of, Sun - worship with the pure Hebraic Faith. Similarly, the keeping of Easter Sunday and Christmas are also not found in Scripture.

Another "later rendering", a tradition of the Church which our fathers have inherited, was the adoption of the words "cross" and "crucify". These words are nowhere to be found in the Greek of the New Testament. These words are mistranslations, a "later rendering", of the Greek words stauros and stauroo.

Vine's Expository Dictionary of New Testament Words says, "STAUROS denotes, primarily, an upright pole or stake ... Both the noun and the verb stauroo, to fasten to a stake or pole, are originally to be distinguished from the ecclesiastical form of a tow-beamed cross.

He himself bore our sins in his body on the tree (Strong's 3586. xulon), that we might die to sin and live to righteousness. By his wounds you have been healed.
1 Peter 2:24

For the word of the Stautros (Strong's: 4716) (Stake/Pole, not a cross) is folly to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of יְהוָה (Yahuah). 1 Corinthians 1:18

And being found in human form, he humbled himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a stauros (Strong's 4716). (an upright stake, not a cross). Philippians 2:8

and he went out, bearing his own stauros (Srong's 4716) (an upright stake , not a cross), to the place called The Place of a Skull, which in Hebrew is called Golgotha. John 19:17

The Hebrew 6086 ets עץ, which means pine, plank, staff, stalk, stick, stock, timber, tree, wood.

His body shall not remain overnight on the tree, but you shall surely bury him that day, so that you do not defile the land which אֲרָצְךָ (Yahuah) your Aluah (God_ is giving you as an inheritance; for he who is hanged is accursed of אֲרָצְךָ (Yahuah)). Deuteronomy 21:23

19 But I was like a docile lamb brought to the slaughter; and I did not know that they had devised schemes against me, saying, "Let us destroy the tree with its fruit, and let us cut him off from the land of the living, that his name may be remembered no more. Jeremiah 11:19

The shape of the latter had its origin in ancient Chaldea (Babylon), and was used as the symbol of the savior God Tammuz (being in the shape of the mystic Tau, the initial of his name) ... By the middle of the 3rd A.D. the churches had either departed from, or had travestied, certain doctrines of the Christian faith. In order to increase the prestige of the apostate ecclesiastical system pagans were received into the churches apart from regeneration by faith, and were permitted largely to retain their pagan signs and symbols. Hence the Tau or T, in its most frequent form, with the cross piece lowered, was adopted ...." Dr. Bullinger, The Companion Bible, appx. 162, states, "crosses were used as symbols of the Babylonian Sun-God ... It should be stated that Constantine was a Sun-God worshiper.

The evidence is thus complete, that the וְיָשָׁא (Yahusha) was put to death upon an upright stake, and not on two pieces of timber placed at any angle." The Two Babylons, pp. 197-205, frankly calls the cross "this Pagan symbol ... the Tau, the sign of the cross, the indisputable sign of Tammuz, the false Messiah ... the mystic Tau of the Cladeans (Babylonians) and Egyptians - the true original form of the letter T the initial of the name of Tammuz.

The Babylonian cross was the recognized emblem of Tammuz." In the Encyclopaedia Britannica, 11th edition, vol. 14, p. 273, we read, "In the Egyptian churches the cross was a pagan symbol of life borrowed by the Christians and interpreted in the pagan manner." Jacob Grimm, in his Deutsche Mythologie, says that the Teutonic (Germanic) tribes had their idol Thor, symbolized by a hammer, while the Roman Christians had their crux (cross). It was thus somewhat easier for the Teutons to accept the Roman Cross.

Greek dictionaries, lexicons and other study books also declare the primary meaning of stauros to be an upright pale, pole or stake. The secondary meaning of "cross" is admitted by them to be a "later" rendering. At least two of them do not even mention "cross", and only render the meaning as "pole or stake". In spite of this strong evidence and proof that the word stauros should have been translated "stake", and the verb stauroo to have been translated "impale", almost all the common versions of the Scriptures persist with the Latin Vulgate's crux (cross), a fallacious "later" rendering of the Greek stauros.

Why then was the "cross" (crux) brought into the belief? Again, historical evidence points to Constantine as the one who had the major share in uniting Sun-worship and the Hebraic beliefs.

Constantine's famous vision of "the cross superimposed on the Sun", in the year 312, is usually cited. Writers, ignorant of the fact that the cross was not to be found in the New Testament Scriptures, put much emphasis on this vision as the onset of the so-called "conversion" of Constantine. But, unless Constantine had been misguided by the Gnostic Manichean half-Christians, who indeed used the cross in their hybrid religion, this vision of the cross superimposed on the Sun could only be the same old cosmic religion, the astrological religion of Babylon. The fact remains: that which Constantine saw, is nowhere to be found in Scripture.

We read in the book of Johannes Geffcken, The Last Days of Greco-Roman Paganism, p.319, "that even after 314 A.D. the coins of Constantine show an even-armed cross as a symbol for the Sun-God." Many scholars have doubted the "conversion" of Constantine because of the wicked deeds that he did afterwards, and because of the fact that he only requested to be baptized on his death-bed many years later, in the year 337.

So, if the vision of the cross impressed him, and was used as a rallying symbol, it could not have been in honor of 𐤎𐤓𐤕𐤁𐤏 (Yahusha), because Constantine continued paying homage to the Sun-deity and to one of the Sun-deity's symbols, the cross.

This continuation of Sun-worship by Constantine is of by his persistent use of images of the Sun-deity on his coins that were issued by him up to the year 323.

Secondly, the fact of his motivation to issue his Sunday-keeping edict in the year 321, which was not done in honor of OWYAZ (Yahusha), but was done because of the "venerable day of the Sun", as the edict read, is proof of this continued allegiance to Sol Invictus. We shall expand on this later.

Where did the cross come from, then? J.C. Cooper, An Illustrated Encyclopedia of Traditional Symbols, p. 45, aptly summarizes it, "Cross - A universal symbol from the most remote times; it is the cosmic symbol par excellence." Other authorities also call it a Sun-symbol, a Babylonian Sun-symbol, an astrological Babylonian-Assyrian and heathen run-symbol, also in the form of an encircled cross referred to as a "solar wheel", and many other varieties of crosses.

Also, "the cross represents the Tree of Life", the age-old fertility symbol, combining the vertical male and horizontal female principles, especially in Egypt, either as an ordinary cross, or better known in the form of the crux ansata, the Egyptian ankh (sometimes called the Tau cross), which had been carried over into our modern-day symbol of the female, well known in biology. As stated above, the indisputable sign of Tammuz, the mystic Tau of the Babylonians and Egyptians, was brought into the Christian Church chiefly because of Constantine, and has since been adored with all the homage due only to the Most High. The Protestants have for many years refrained from undue adoration of, or homage to the cross, especially in England at the time of the Puritans in the 16th - 17th centuries.

But lately this un-Scriptural symbol has been increasingly accepted in Protestantism. We have previously discussed "the weeping for Tammuz", and the similarity between the Easter resurrection and the return or rising of Tammuz. Tammuz was the young incarnate Sun, the Sun-divinity incarnate. This same Sun-deity, known amongst the Babylonians as Tammuz, was identified with the Greek Lord and with the Phoenician Lord, all of them Sun-deities, being slain in winter, then being "wept for", and their return being celebrated by a festivity in spring, while some had it in summer - according to the myths of pagan idolatry.

The evidence for its pagan origin is so convincing that The Catholic Encyclopedia admits that "the sign of the cross, represented in its simplest form by a crossing of two lines at right angles, greatly antedates, in both East and the West, the introduction of Christianity. It goes back to a very remote period of human civilization."

It then continues to the Tau cross of the pagan Egyptians, "In later times the Egyptian Christians (Copts), attracted by its form, and perhaps by its symbolism, adopted it as the emblem of the cross." Further proof of its pagan origin is the recorded evidence of the Vestal Virgins of pagan Rome having the cross hanging on a necklace, and the Egyptians doing it too, as early as the 15th century B.C.E. The Buddhists, and Ancient Egyptian Rot-n-no priests.

Note: the Crosses on the robe, and hanging from their necks. numerous other sects of India, also used the sign of the cross as a mark on their followers' heads. "The cross thus widely worshiped, or regarded as a 'sacred emblem', was the unequivocal symbol of Bacchus, the Babylonian Messiah, for he was represented with a head-band covered with crosses." It was also the symbol of Jupiter Foederis: This is Tammuz, whom the Greeks called Bacchus, with the crosses on his head-band.

Rome. Furthermore, we read of the cross on top of the temple of Serapis, the Sun-deity of Alexandria.

After Constantine had the "vision of the cross", he and his army promoted another variety of the cross, the Chi-Rho or Labarum or sometimes . This has subsequently been explained as representing the first letters of the name Christos, the being the Greek for "Ch" and the being the Greek for "r". but again, this emblem had a pagan origin. The identical and were found as inscriptions on rock, dating from the year ca. 2 500 B.C.E., being interpreted as "a combination of two Sun-symbols", the as the Ax or Hammer-symbol of the Sun- or Sky-deity, and the or as the ancient symbol of the Sun, both of these signs having a sensual or fertility meaning as well. Another proof of its pagan origin is the identical found on a coin of Ptolemeus III from the year 247 - 222 B.C.E.

A well-known encyclopedia describes the Labarum (Chi-Rho) as, "The labarum was also an emblem of the Chaldean (Babylonian) sky-god and in Christianity it was adopted..." Emperor Constantine adopted this Labarum as the imperial ensign and thereby succeeded in "uniting both divisions of his troops, pagans and Christians, in a common worship ... according to Suicer the word (labarum) came into use in the reign of Hadrian, and was probably adopted from one of the nations conquered by the Romans."

It must be remembered that Hadrian reigned in the years 76 - 138 C.E., that he was a pagan emperor, worshiped the Sun-deity Serapis when he visited Alexandria, and was vehemently anti-Hebrew, being responsible for the final near-destruction of Jerusalem in the year C.E. Another dictionary relates the following about the Chi-Rho, "However, the symbol was in use long before Christianity, and X (Chi) probably stood for Great Fire or Sun, and P (Rho) probably stood for Pater or Patah (Father). The word labarum (labarum) yields everlasting Father Sun."

What is the "Mark of the beast" of which we read in Revelation 13:16-17, 14:9-11, 15:2, 16:2, 19:20 and 20:4 - a mark on people's foreheads and on their right hands? Revelation 14:11 reveals the mark to be "the Mark of his (the beast's) name." Have we not read about the mystic Tau, the T, the initial of Tammuz's name, his mark? This same letter T (Tau) was written in Egyptian hieroglyphics and in the old Wemitic languages as , representing the CROSS. Different interpretations have been given to the "Mark of the beast", and also the cross has been suggested.

There has been some research done on the strange crosses found on quite a few statues of pagan priests, on their foreheads. However, these scholars have been unable to come to an agreement. Conclusive evidence may still come (see among others: Dr. F.J. Dolger, Antike und Christentum, vol. 2, pp. 281-293).

Let us rather use the true rendering of the Scriptural words stauros and stauro, namely "stake" and "impale" and eliminate the un-Scriptural "cross" and "crucify".
